some tenant, the police and f remen say, dumped hot ashes down the dumbwaiter These smoldered and burst forth about 11 o'clock. The fire climbed up through the dumbwaiter and then ate its way to the hall.

Carr was one of the first to awaken. He ushered his family into the hall, but the way to the street was barred

He then led the way to the roof. Carr had not brought out his insurance papers in his hurry to save his family. Down the stairs he plunged to his apartments and got the papers and also the draft of an invention on which he had been working. They again reached the roof. Then they heard screaming in some of the other apartments and went back to steer the tenants to the fire-

EDNA LURED FROM HER BRONX HOME

Wards Hear of a Rope and Two Men in Case and Give Alarm.

the bell-cow of the Bronx, is lost in New York. Edna has led a blameless life-in fact, a more moral, upright cow would be hard to find in a day's travel. That's why Thomas Ward, her owner, is puzzied that she should have fallen for the lure of the great city. There is a suspicion in the mind of Ward that instead of being lured Edna was ledby a rope, at the other end of which were two young men of the type known to the Far West as "rustlers."

But figure as you will, one thing is certain, Edna has gone from the Ward home at Ne son avenue and One Hundred and Seventieth street, the home that has been hers since the demise of her mother, Georgiana, a cow belle of those days. She had wandered about the lots, munching the property grass carelessly, put there by the real estate agents. Ear, night she returned to hand over the milk that she into hand over the milk that she insisted on paying for board. Each night she mooed a parting "sweet dreams" to the Ward family. So now they miss her, and miss her milk-board as well. Edna is half blonde, half brunette, as is the way with Hoisteins. So, gentle reader, if you should happen upon Edna on Broadway, see to it that the Gerry or somebody is notified before she has gone beyond recall.

able—Noted Physician's Formula.

Mix one-half ounce of Concentrated pine compound with two ounces of glycering and half a pint of good whiskey. Shake it thoroughly and use in doses of a teaspoonful to a tablespoonful every four hours.

The above formula is one of the very best remedies obtainable for an acute cold. It will strengthen the lungs, relieve coughs and heal the bronchial tubes, and it will cure any lung trouble not too far advanced. These ingredients are procurable of any good prescription druggist and easily mixed at home.

The Concentrated pine is a refined pine product for medical use and comes only in half ounce bottles, each enclosed in a in screw-top case which is air-tight, but be sure it is labeled "Concentrated." ## An Offering of Painstaking Labor

The World Almanac for 1909, 880 pages, is now on sale. The Almanac is thoroughly and accurately up to date. It presents New Thought readers with details of the Emmanuel mind-cure movement, and on near-by pages is the official statement as to Mr. Roosevelt's contemplated descent on Africa. The Prohibition wave is carefully followed in its rolling across the States. The Pope's encyclical on Modernism is given in full, as is the Lambeth encyclical on marriage, divorce and the family, adopted by the Episcopal Conference in 1908.

The story of the Panama Canal is amplified. There are notes on the prosecutions of trusts and rebates. Attention is paid to the Hudson-Fulton tercentennial and to the expositions planned for 1909. Walter Wellman writes of Polar Expeditions, and there is the very latest word about airships.

A new feature of the Almanac, exclusive and invaluable, is a summary by States of all the laws relating to the administration of the estates of persons deceased. This department was compiled by an experienced lawyer and is perhaps the first complete publication of such matter in popular form. it represents really a small library of law

These things which have been mentioned incidentally are in addition, of course, to the year-by-year features of the Almanae-to the political platforms, summaries and election tables; to the official lists and statistics of governments, of labor, of the churches and of the schools; to details of the world's armies and navies; to the census counts; to the wonderfully full pages of sports; to the fig. ures of the crops and the manufactures; to the list of American millionaires; to the statistics of the railroads; to the outlines of new legislation by States; to the past year's chronology, and to the thousand and one things or more that go to make every new issue of the Almanac a volume to be cherished in an encyclopaedic library. Not forgetting such a gossipy detail as a list of the real names, birthplaces and birth years of popular stage people.

The World Almanac is the offering of painstaking labor; t will reward unceasingly the search of the student, the statesman, the sporting man, the man of affairs, the casual reader-and the rest of the family.
